

Fitness Music Services (FMS)

FAQs

What does the Licence cover?

The Licence allows the licensee to supply music to Fitness Professionals solely for the purpose using music in their fitness classes. The Licence covers the reproduction of musical works, including making music available for downloading.

What are the rights and formats covered under the agreement?

Rights:

The FMS Licence covers the MCPS mechanical reproduction right and the PRS for Music communication to the public right as follows:

- a. The creation of a digital database of audio-only, music video tracks or karaoke tracks to source for supplying the service;
- b. The transmission of the music via electronic means to end customers in the UK only;
- c. The transmission of the music via satellite (if uplinked from the UK) to end customers in the EEA; and
- d. The creation of copies at the client end on hard disk when tracks are delivered to a client site for local storage or streaming via electronic means or satellite in the UK only.

NB: The FMS Licence does not include the right to play music in any venue. A Public Performance Licence can be obtained separately from the PRS for Music.

Formats:

Physical delivery methods: All physical formats (such as, tape, compact disc, DVD, CD-ROM, portable hard drive, laser disc) used for physical distribution of content to users.

Electronic delivery methods: any distribution of data in an electronic form, wire, wireless, public and private communication networks, internet and satellite.

Please refer to the FAQ for information pertaining to the licensable rights with regards to satellite and online distribution.

What territories are covered by the Licence?

The Licence covers manufacture of the product in the UK and distribution of the product anywhere within the EEA. Online delivery is restricted to the UK only.
